MEN ON FIRE WASTE

C. F. Nesbit Says Education Is More Important Than Laws For Reducing It.

Education of the public in fire pre ention does more to reduce fire waste than statutory regulation, Charles F Nesbit, superintendent of insurance for the District, told the Washington Assoby banks, was made by Samuel J. Henry, manager of the Fifteenth and H street branch of the Munsey Trust ompany

Fire waste for 1914 reached the enor mous sum of $235,591,350 in the United States and Canada, Mr. Nesbit pointed out. He said this was the largest loss ever reported in a single year except in those years which saw the Chelsea, the San Francisco, and the Baltimore conflagrations.

Two Ways To Reduce tl.

"There are two methods of reducing this fire waste." Mr. Nesbit said. "One is by education, and this is by far the more important. The other is by laws and regulations controlling buildings, building improvements, and the use of explosive and highly inflammable ma-

Mr. Nesbit described an effort now being made in Washington to obtain education along this line in the public schools, and pointed to the prizes offered through the Board of Education for the best essays on "The Prevention of Fire Waste," "open to high school pupils, as the first step in such an educational campaign here.

Wants Fire Prevention Day. Fire prevention day has been made an anflual event in many cities and States, and Mr. Nesbit said an effort would be made to have such a day set aside in Washington next fall. He already has made this recommendation

Fire Commissioner Adamson, of New York city, the speaker stated, took the nost progressive step toward fire pre-cention when he endeavored to have the cost of fighting fires in buildings which had not complied with fire regu-lations charged to the owners of such buildings.

would like to think," Mr. Nesbit con-cluded. "Personally, I feel that no property should be fully insured. I feel that if the owner of the property knew that any fire must result in able loss to him, it would increase

For Efficient Methods.

The prime purpose in the adoption of model form of financial statement Mr. Henry said, is to make business Since the recent Zeppelin threats by methods more efficient and less waste-
